

2012 WINTER INTRODUCTIONS

THREE CABALLEROS

*That quixotic quackster Donald Duck journeys into South America with dapper José Carioca from Brazil and ebullient Panchito the Mexican rooster as his tour guides. Panchito graciously invites his two amigos to accompany him on “a nice little trip to Mexico on the magic serape.” This multi-colored magic carpet sweeps the birds-of-a-feather trio over the beautiful land of song, dance and romance. Panchito, José (who was introduced in Saludos Amigos) and Donald were animated throughout The Three Caballeros by, among others, Ollie Johnston, Ward Kimball and John Lounsbery, so it’s obvious Walt Disney wanted his most magnífico talent to bring these animated stars to the screen. Plussed with pewter spurs on Panchito and a pewter ribbon on Donald’s hat, this muy grande sculpture embodies the fun and fiesta spirit of this animated carnivale of animated delights.*

TIM BURTON'S THE NIGHTMARE BEFORE CHRISTMAS

All of Halloween Town congregates for a frightful but festive parade — and wherever ghastly ghouls gather Mr. Hyde and Cyclops are sure to be present and accounted for. Plussed with pewter, bronze and his signature metal chain, Mr. Hyde (inspired by Robert Louis Stevenson's famous horror story Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde) is ready to liven up (or is that deaden down?) any party. And, of course, that mythological miscreant Cyclops (plussed with pewter arms and legs) always has his eye open for a gruesomely good time. These two classic monsters join the Pumpkin King himself, Jack Skellington, and those two Nightmare Before Christmas favorites Undersea Gal and Devil to make the gathering of Halloweentown's most demented denizens more chillingly celebratory — for with these unforgettably creepy creatures every day is Halloween.

CINDERELLA

Dashing downstairs from her lonely attic room, Cinderella excitedly shows off her pretty party dress — lovingly sewed and stitched together by the loyal mice Jaq and Gus and Cinderella's other animal friends, while the mistreated scullery maid's cruel Stepmother Lady Tremaine looks aghast. "I felt that for the story to work, the Stepmother had to be as realistic as Cinderella herself," said directing animator Frank Thomas. "She couldn't be as cartoony or buffoonish as the Stepsisters.

I had to find ways to draw her not realistically but as convincingly as Cinderella was drawn. With animators like Marc Davis and Eric Larson working on Cinderella, it was a tough standard to try and come up to." These exquisitely crafted sculptures (Cinderella is plussed with pewter legs) capture all the beauty and hope — and heartless menace — of Walt Disney's animated masterpiece.

CINDERELLA

As lovely as she is kind, Cinderella gracefully models her party dress, handcrafted by her devoted animal friends with care, dedication and love. The same ingredients went into this exquisite sculpture, as evidenced by the beautiful-in-its-own-right whiteware version of Cinderella and her dress. The creation of whiteware is part of the painstaking process in which each Walt Disney Classics Collection piece is crafted. This special whiteware version is a Numbered Limited Edition of 200 pieces and is a Gold Circle Dealer Exclusive.
